Welcome to This Workshop

This workbook is your personal companion for the Decision Fatigue Assessment Mini Workshop. Use it to capture insights, complete activities, and build your development plan.

The quality of your development is determined by the quality of your reflection. Use this workbook to think deeply, not just to take notes.

How to Use This Workbook

Complete each activity as directed during the workshop.
There are no right or wrong answers — this is your personal reflection space.
Your responses are private unless you choose to share them.
Return to this workbook after the session to deepen your thinking.

Part 1 — Where I Am Now

Before we explore the framework, take 3 minutes to reflect honestly on your current experience.

What does Decision Fatigue Assessment currently look like in my leadership practice?

Where is Decision Fatigue Assessment strongest in my work right now?

Where does Decision Fatigue Assessment feel most difficult or underdeveloped?

Self-Rating

Rate yourself honestly across the following dimensions (1 = needs significant development, 10 = exceptional):

Dimension	Now (1-10)	Target (1-10)
Overall Decision Fatigue Assessment capability
Consistency of practice
Impact on my team
Impact on my organisation
Personal sustainability

Part 2 — Framework Exploration

Use this section to capture key insights from the presentation and discussion.

The most important idea from the framework for my leadership:

A specific example from my own experience that connects to this framework:

A question this framework raises for me that I want to explore further:

Something I want to discuss with a colleague or manager after this workshop:

Part 3 — Reflection Activity

Take 10 minutes to work through these questions individually. Be specific and honest.

The single biggest insight from today's session that applies to my leadership right now:

If I improved my Decision Fatigue Assessment by 20% over the next 90 days, what would be different?

What is currently preventing me from developing Decision Fatigue Assessment further?

What support do I need from my manager, team, or organisation?

Part 4 — Peer Reflection

Share your responses with a partner. Use the questions below to guide your conversation.

Pair Sharing Questions

1. What is the most important thing you wrote in Part 3 — and why?
2. What would change in your leadership if you acted on your biggest insight?
3. What commitment can you make right now — and how can you hold each other accountable?

Key insight from my partner that I want to remember:

Part 5 — My Commitment

Complete your commitment before leaving the workshop. Be specific, realistic, and time-bound.

My one commitment for the next 30 days:

How I will measure whether I have followed through:

Who will I share this commitment with to create accountability?

My Decision Fatigue Assessment Commitment I commit to: _____ _____ Signed: _____ Date: _____
