How to Use This Journal

This journal is your 12-week structured reflection practice for Decision Fatigue Assessment development. Consistent weekly reflection is the single most powerful habit for sustainable leadership growth.

The leader who reflects consistently for 12 weeks will develop more than the leader who attends 12 workshops.

Journal Guidelines

Complete one entry every week — ideally on the same day at the same time.

Set aside 15-20 minutes of uninterrupted time for each entry.

Be specific and honest. Vague reflection produces vague growth.

Review your previous entry before starting a new one to track patterns.

Share selected entries with your manager or coach to deepen accountability.

My intention for this 12-week journal:

What I most want to develop in Decision Fatigue Assessment over the next 12 weeks:

How I will know my Decision Fatigue Assessment has genuinely improved:

Week 1 | Decision Fatigue Assessment Reflection

Date: _____

Energy Level: ____ / 10

This week, Decision Fatigue Assessment showed up in my leadership when...

The most important thing I learned or noticed this week:

One thing I will do differently next week because of this reflection:

What worked well?

What was difficult?

What will I change?

Week 2 | Decision Fatigue Assessment Reflection
